City wants to turn frozen pipes into 'disaster' dollars

Show us the money.
Councillors putting pressure on province to help secure federal financial assistance

BERNICE PONTANILLA

The city's chair of finance is calling on the provincial government to declare the ongoing frozen-pipes emergency a disaster in order to receive much-needed financial relief.

Coun. Russ Wyatt made his comments in response to an email sent to media over the request for disaster financial assistance (DFA).

The email states that while provincial officials are "tracking the situation closely and in contact with city officials regarding their request for DFA," the indications from the feds is that "this type of situation is not likely eligible."

"While the province and federal government share the costs of DFA, DFA is a national program and the department of Public Safety Canada decides eligibility," added the cabinet spokesperson.

Wyatt said it's the provincial government that needs to declare the disaster.

"We're waiting to get direction from them," Wyatt said after the meeting.

"I hope the province is supportive in terms of declaring a disaster and I think that would in and of itself probably send a message to the federal government, but it hasn't occurred yet."

Money trouble

The City of Winnipeg is facing a $21.4-million deficit, which has elected officials exploring ways to save money.

- During Thursday's finance committee meeting, Mike Ruta, the city's chief financial officer, told councillors that this past winter's heavy snowfall and the frozen-pipes emergency are responsible for the shortfall.
- City staff are still dealing with frozen pipes, as there are 32 properties still without water. Another 45 have temporary hose lines.

Water & waste program

Havixbeck calls for more staff to deal with water woes

A city councillor is calling for the halt in the vacancy management program after it became known that the measures to fix the brown water problem have been delayed.

Coun. Paula Havixbeck said during Thursday's finance committee meeting that the procedure of leaving positions unfilled is simply not feasible for the city's water and waste department.

"With this much overtime, how can you spare anyone, really," asked Havixbeck during the meeting.

"My point is that if this is not the year to be practising vacancy management, given these two high-priority items, both the flushing and the frozen pipes, at what point would council be made aware to make any modifications if needed?"

A city official said the flushing program has been delayed due to the late spring start. In other municipal water news, city officials told the committee that while the provincial government has approved plans for the South End Water Pollution Control Centre upgrades, they have not yet agreed to the extension in time requested to become compliant. According to the report delivered to the finance committee, the current licence "requires the plant meet more stringent discharge effluent requirements by Dec. 31, 2015, despite the fact that the province approved the city's submitted plan which included a completion date of Oct. 31, 2016."

Transit. Smart cards should be here by 2015

Winnipeg's transit director says they're still working out some kinks for smart cards, but some should be ready by the end of the year. Dave Wardrop told the City of Winnipeg's finance committee Thursday they're aiming to roll out the cards for Handi-Transit in late 2014, with full implementation on all city buses by 2015.

Smart cards are part of the city's overall plan to provide more ways to pay for Winnipeg's transit users. Transit rolled out new GFI-Odyssey fare boxes, according to transit's manager of plant equipment Tony Dreolini. All the boxes were installed in buses a year ago.

The new boxes featured automatic coin counters, on-screen information displays, paper transfer printers and QR readers, a separate ticket slot and smart card sensors that will be used to read transit's new smart cards, which will replace tickets and passes when the second phase of the changes go into effect.

Gods, goddesses to take over Winnipeg Art gallery

Major exhibit. Gallery one of two venues in North America to showcase antiquities

winnipeg@metronews.ca

Greek and Roman gods and goddesses will descend into the city next year as the Winnipeg Art Gallery gets set to host a major exhibition of classical antiquities from Europe.

Called Olympus: The Greco-Roman Collections of Berlin, the exhibit is one of only two venues in North America to present the exhibition of Greek and Roman art from the fifth century BC to the second century AD.

The exhibit will showcase more than 160 works, including marble and bronze statuettes, terracotta vases, and jewelry from the Berlin State Museum's classical antiquities collection. The show includes ancient sculptures of mythological figures such as Zeus, Apollo and Venus.

"There has never been a major exhibition of Greek and Roman art, in terms of classical art, in Winnipeg," WAG director Dr. Stephen Borys said at the announcement Thursday.

"The last time there was a major show of antiquities was 50 years ago when the treasures of King Tut came here. Not only is it unprecedented, but it's coming from one of the greatest museums of classic antiquity in the world."

Efforts to bring the exhibit have been ongoing for more than a year. A team

Agriculture. 'The ground's wet enough without my tears': Farmer

Up to 400,000 hectares of farmland could go unseeded in Manitoba this year because soggy conditions and relentless rain are making it impossible for farmers to get on their fields.

Dwayne Hodgins has been farming in the southwest near Melita for 30 years and hasn't been able to seed more than three-quarters of his 2,480 hectares. Last year, about 800 hectares of his crop were lost when his land flooded after seeding.

His farm has received 300 millimetres of rain this spring, some of which fell on frozen ground because it took so long for the frost to melt. These days, he said, it's hard to keep from losing hope.

"The ground's wet enough without my tears on it," Hodgins said. "You know you need to go to work because you haven't got a paycheque coming, and then you can't get out the door because there is a puddle in front of it. That's exactly what it's like. It's frustrating."

Crop insurance deadlines are looming, but Hodgins said insurance won't cover his costs.

Producers have been trying various approaches to dry their land, but nothing is working. It's estimated between 240,000 to 400,000 hectares will remain fallow this year.

Pembina Highway. Car drivers nab teens throwing rocks off overpass

Winnipeg police arrested two teens who decided throwing rocks off the Pembina Highway overpass onto the speeding traffic below was a good use of their time.

Police said three boys headed to the overpass and threw rocks at traffic at about 10:15 p.m. Tuesday night. They managed to hit four cars, including a Nissan Versa, Toyota Sienna, a Ford F-150 and a Volkswagen Jetta, all of which were travelling at about 80 km/h. The boys caused about $2,500 damage.

Victims rescued in child porn case

National investigation. Police say nearly two million images and videos seized, many with infants and toddlers

Five children under the age of 10 were rescued by police following a national child pornography investigation that targeted alleged sex offenders and resulted in hundreds of charges, the RCMP said Thursday.

Officers released the results of a four-month investigation into child exploitation that reached into every province, announcing in Halifax that more than 150 people have been arrested or are under investigation.

Sgt. Michael Petrilli said almost two million images and videos have been seized, with many involving infants and toddlers.

"I cannot stress enough what these images are and what they are not," he said at a new conference where he was flanked by about a dozen officers from 40 police agencies involved in the operation.

"These images are not simply children having a bubble bath. They are clearly children that are in a situation where they are being sexually assaulted."

Investigators said two of the children who have been rescued are from British Columbia, and the other three are from Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick. They released few details about them, but said they all knew their alleged abusers and only some of them were involved in cases of alleged pornography production.

The 343 charges include sexual assault, luring, possession and distribution of child pornography, and voyeurism. Petrilli said 104 people have been charged, but more charges are pending.

Sgt. Darren Parisien, an RCMP member from Saskatoon, said the force is always trying to keep pace with technological advances that can allow predators to skirt detection, adding that investigators are becoming more skilled at using technology to more quickly categorize images and get them before the court.

Province to raise social assistance rental rates, launch new programs for workers

Low-income workers in Manitoba are about to see a little more help paying their rent.

Manitoba is launching a new program, called Rent Assist, that will replace the current EIA shelter allowance and RentAid programs. The program was promised in this year's provincial budget.

Under the new program, those on social assistance will receive $435 a month towards rent, compared to the previous $365 a month. Low-income earners will receive a maximum of $270 a month with that benefit decreasing as earners earn higher wages, said Jobs and the Economy Minister Theresa Oswald.

The province has promised to continue to raise the assistance amount towards rent to 75 per cent of the median market rate for rent over the next four years.

The province is also launching a program called Manitoba Works!, a program linking community-based organizations with more than 250 people on Retiring president and vice-chancellor Lloyd Axworthy has donated nearly 50 years worth of materials spanning his life, starting with his first political campaign in 1966, to other diplomatic, political and international relations work at home and abroad.

"These records have significant research value because of Dr. Axworthy's rich contributions to Canadian politics and international relations," said Gabrielle Prefontaine, dean of the University of Winnipeg Library in a press release. "As well, because of Dr. Axworthy's decades-long history of service to UWinnipeg, this donation has a deeper, more symbolic

Many of the records are drawn from 1996-2004, when Dr. Axworthy was most heavily involved with international events."

Axworthy announced his retirement earlier this year and said he would not get back into politics. He has since been appointed the first chancellor of a University of Waterloo-affiliated college.

Residential schools.

Archivist says survivors' testimonies should be kept

The head of Canada's national archive dedicated to Indian residential schools says the voices of 40,000 survivors would be silenced if a judge orders their testimony destroyed.

Ry Moran, director of the National Research Centre for Truth and Reconciliation in Manitoba, says thousands of survivors told their stories as part of the compensation process.

The head of the secretariat that co-ordinates compensation claims is arguing that private testimony should be destroyed so it is never made public.

Arguments over the fate of the emotional evidence are to be made before an Ontario judge next month.

Moran says the commission has documents from churches and government, but he adds the oral history of aboriginal people is fundamental.

He says if that testimony were housed in the national research centre, it would be treated with the utmost respect and no survivor would ever be unwillingly identified.

Colleges urged to collect better stats on stalking, violence

United States. Obama pushes U.S. colleges to keep better stats on stalking, date violence and domestic violence

The Obama administration wants colleges and universities to compile statistics on stalking, dating violence and domestic violence as part of its ongoing effort to curb sexual assaults on campuses.

The Education Department proposed a new rule Thursday designed to provide a better picture of these problems.

The proposed rule change falls under the Clery Act, which requires colleges and universities to report crime statistics on or near their campuses and provide warnings in a timely manner if safety is threatened. The Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act of 2013 signed by President Barack Obama amended the Clery Act by extending additional rights to campus victims.

Victims' advocates have said the statistics, as currently compiled, don't paint an accurate picture of the extent of sexual crimes on campuses.

"These new rules strengthen schools' capacity to provide safer college campuses for students and to keep everyone better informed about campus security policies and procedures," Education Secretary Arne Duncan said.

Among the other proposed rule changes: adding

Hemp seeds held at U.S.-Canada border

Fledgling industry. Seizure underscores difficulties facing U.S. hemp industry after decades of prohibition

Hundreds of pounds of industrial hemp seeds bound from Canada to Colorado have been seized by federal authorities in North Dakota, marking the latest bump along the road to legalization of marijuana's non-intoxicating cousin.

At the centre of the dispute is hemp activist Tom McClain. Armed with a copy of last year's federal Farm Bill, which allowed states to permit hemp cultivation for research and development, he set off for MacGregor, Man., and bought 350 pounds of seeds used to grow a strain known as X-59 or Hemp Nut.

Hemp is legal in Canada, and North Dakota is one of 15 states with laws that allow limited hemp production. However, under the Farm Bill, importing hemp seeds requires permission from the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration.

McClain's seeds were confiscated Saturday at the border crossing in Hansboro, N.D., after he says he declared the seven bags in his trunk. McClain, however, has not been charged with a crime. "They treated me very professionally," McClain said after he returned to Colorado — without the seeds. "They were just a little confused as to what to do."

Smartphone thefts. Data show iPhone 'kill switch' sharply reduces crime

New crime data show Apple's addition of a "kill switch" to its iPhones last September has sharply reduced robberies and thefts, authorities in the U.S. said Thursday.

The report from a year-old initiative called Secure Our Smartphones said Google and Microsoft will incorporate a kill switch into the next version of their operating systems on smartphones.

In New York City, robberies of Apple products fell 19 per cent while grand larcen-ies dropped 29 per cent in the first five months of 2014 compared with a year earlier, according to the report. Robberies and grand larcenies involving a Samsung smartphone, which didn't have a kill switch during much of that time, rose more than 40 per cent.

The iPhone switch is an opt-in feature that allows the user to locate the phone on a map and remotely lock or erase it.

Toronto. Air Canada flight to Brazil forced home due to unscreened passenger Canadian officials were saying little Thursday about a security lapse at Pearson International airport that prompted them to order an Air Canada flight with 189 passengers en route to Brazil to return to Toronto after several hours in the air.

Air Canada said Flight 090 took off for São Paulo at around 11:30 p.m. Wednesday, unaware a passenger had boarded without proper screening.

"With the aircraft already in the air for four hours, we were notified of this and ordered by Transport Canada to have the aircraft return to Toronto," Air Canada spokesman Peter Fitzpatrick said in an email.

The plane landed at 6:30 a.m. at Pearson and was surrounded by police.

Airport authorities had said Wednesday that all departing international flights from Terminal 1 were suspended while police searched for a man who had passed through security unchecked.

An Air Canada flight to Brazil was forced to return to Toronto early Thursday due to a security breach. THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Peel regional police said Thursday they were called to the airport for a "security breach" to try to identify the man who had triggered the alert. Using surveillance footage, they were able to determine he had boarded the Air Canada flight.

Officers interviewed him on the plane's return to Canada.

"We found there was no criminality involved and that was pretty much it," Const. George Tudos said. "At that point, he was allowed to re-board." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Twitter. Despite positive PR potential for police, study points out pitfalls

Police forces across the country are flocking to Twitter, breaking news about arrests, soliciting tips from the public and offering real-time information during disasters.

But a University of British Columbia researcher says services like Twitter also present pitfalls as officers blur their professional and private lives.

Sociology professor Christopher Schneider has released a study that found police forces in Canada primarily use Twitter as a public-relations tool, with some forces such as Toronto police even encouraging individual officers to tweet from their own accounts.

Schneider's research identifies potential dangers, such as officers tweeting sensitive information or writing something offensive.

And he says while personal tweets might help present an officer as likable, they may also undermine the authority of police forces. THE CANADIAN PRESS

More than 120 cats seized from home in Halifax area

The SPCA in Nova Scotia says three people have pleaded guilty to animal cruelty following the discovery of more than 120 cats in a Halifax-area home.

The cats were taken to shelters — which the SPCA estimates cost more than $15,000 within the first few weeks — and the three people have been banned from owning animals for 10 years. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Justice minister defends remarks on female judges

Gender offender.

Peter MacKay had said fewer women apply for federal bench positions to stay home with kids

Federal Justice Minister Peter MacKay is defending comments he made last week about why so few women are appointed as judges in Canada.

MacKay was responding to Wednesday's Toronto Star report about an Ontario Bar Association meeting at which he was asked about the lack of women and minorities on federally appointed court benches.

MacKay answered the question by saying that women don't apply to be judges because they fear the job will take them away from their children — and that children need their mothers more than their fathers, the Star report said.

On Thursday, rather than back away from the comments, MacKay stood his ground.

"At early childhood, there's no question I think that women have a greater bond with their children," he said.

Canada needs more women to apply for judicial appointments, he continued, before walking away from reporters.

Conservative responses

Some of MacKay's Conservative colleagues appeared uncomfortable with his remarks.

- Calgary MP Michelle Rempel said parliamentarians should celebrate women, no matter their career choices, including staying at home.
- Ontario MP Mike Wallace refused to comment on the matter, saying it's up to MacKay to defend his own statements.
- And Quebec MP Maxime Bernier laughed off the comments, but was quick to point out that he has a "special bond" with his daughters.

Later in the House of Commons, opposition MPs pounced on MacKay's comment, declaring them sexist and demanding an apology.

"I ask the minister to apologize to all Canadians for blaming motherhood for his abject failure to ensure that the federal court reflects the diversity of society," said Liberal MP Carolyn Bennett.

MacKay insisted, however, that he was being unfairly maligned.

"That, of course, is a complete mischaracteriza-tion of what I said, what I think, how I act and who I am," he told the Commons. Judicial appointments are made solely on the basis of merit, he added.

"With respect to minorities and women being promoted to the judiciary,

I think we can all agree that government, of course, plays an important role in that, but so too do law schools and law societies, and that is exactly the message I was bringing to the Ontario Bar Association."

Government to unveil major reform of temporary foreign worker program

The Harper government was set to announce reforms to the controversial temporary foreign worker program on Friday.

The announcement will be made by Employment Minister Jason Kenney and Immigration Minister Chris Alexander at a 12:30 p.m. news conference in Ottawa.

A poll commissioned by Ottawa suggested Canadians would be in favour of creating an easier path for workers under the program to remain in the country and even obtain citizenship in order to retain their skills.

Industry groups consulted by Kenney and officials say they believe the key change will be to make it more difficult for firms to bring in workers for unskilled, low-paying jobs, such as in the food-service industry.

As well, news reports have speculated the government might impose a wage floor for TFWs that is higher than the Canadian minimum wage.

One change almost certain to be in the measures is new fines for firms that abuse the system.

Kenney recently told MPs

in the House he intended to "severely punish non-compliant employers and prevent distortions in certain regions or industries in the labour market."

As well, Kenney will likely increase the cost to employers of bringing in temporary workers.

The program has become a hot potato for the Harper government ever since stories of abuses came to light in the news media, including one case where Royal Bank employees were asked to train foreign workers to take over their jobs.

In February, 65 Alberta

ironworkers alleged they were let go so that foreign workers could replace them.

The program has become increasingly used by Canadian firms for both high- and low-skilled positions, despite relatively high levels of unemployment and data showing the number of unemployed to vacancies was rising.

A recent government calculation estimated there were 386,000 temporary foreign workers in Canada, or about two per cent of the labour force, up from about 100,000 in 2002.

Trapped caver finally rescued

German Alps.

Multi-country rescue effort took nearly two weeks, involved more than 700 people

After spending nearly two weeks underground, an injured German caver was hauled out of the country's deepest cavern Thursday by a multinational rescue operation that involved more than 700 people.

Johann Westhauser, an experienced caver, had gone into the Riesending cave system in the Alps with two companions to carry out research and measurements. He was hit in the head during a June 8 rock fall while nearly 1,000 metres underground.

After lengthy preparations, rescue teams five days later began the arduous task of hauling him up through a labyrinth of narrow passages and precipitous vertical shafts.

Rescuers brought the 52-year-old the final 180 metres to the surface Thursday and immediately sent him to a hospital.

The rescue became a media event with multi-page spreads in German tabloids.

In all, 728 people from Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy and Croatia participated in the operation, operation director Klaus Reindl told reporters in nearby Berchtesgaden.

Dudes, where are all the women in male-oriented video games?

Electronic Entertainment Expo.

New games feature assassins, soldiers, bank robbers and secret agents — and they are all men

At last week's Electronic Entertainment Expo, video game developers hyped upcoming titles featuring supersoldiers, assassins, bank robbers and secret agents. They all had one thing in common: They're men.

The continued lack of female protagonists in games shown off at E3 highlighted an issue that continues to loom over the video game industry. Why is it still such a dude fest?

"It's boring that we're continuing to have this conversation," said Belinda Van Sickle, president and CEO of the advocacy group Women in Games International.

"I started in the industry nine years ago and it seems like we're having the same conversation with the same responses from industry insiders, gamers and the media. It needs to be more substantive."

While there were a few notable exceptions at this year's E3 — like thrill seeker Lara Croft in Rise of the Tomb Raider and sci-fi survivor Amanda in Alien: Isolation — male characters still far outnumber female protagonists in video games.

Everyone has a different answer as to why the issue persists.

"The more women we have playing games, the more we will be able to have a balance between women and men in the games," said Yves Guillemot, CEO of Ubisoft.

Ubisoft came under the most fire at E3 after revealing that the playable characters in the co-op modes of both its historical adventure Assassin's Creed: Unity and shoot-'em-up Far Cry 4 would all be men.

Despite the fact previous instalments of those series featured female avatars, the developers cited technical limitations for the lack of girl power.

"Any character you create requires extra resources, gender aside," explained Eric Hirshberg, CEO of Activision Publishing.

"Any character that has a different look, voice, mechanics or way of moving, requires more work.... But that's not a reason not to do something. We create lots of different characters with lots of different movements."

He noted Activision's Call of Duty: Advanced Warfare, the latest instalment in the military shooter franchise, will feature a vital female character in the single-player campaign, as well as the re-

A scene from the Ubisoft video game Tom Clancy's Rainbow Six: Siege. Female protagonists continue to be in short supply in video games, game developers acknowledge. COURTESY UBISOFT turn of playable female avatars in the multiplayer mode.

In addition to technical issues, the reasons given for gender imbalance in the game world can include psychology, financial justifications and perhaps sexism.

Yet such excuses don't seem to be holding up anymore when one considers the state of the industry: Audiences for games are changing; the latest generation of consoles is more powerful than before; games have ballooned into a behemoth $21-billion business.

"Our industry is strongest when it appeals to the broadest possible audience," said Michael Gallagher, president and CEO of the Entertainment Software Association, which organizes the E3 trade show.

"The clearest path to appealing to the world as an audience is to make sure you're diverse in your game creators."

Many in the industry believe the problem stems from the game makers themselves, who are mostly men.

Van Sickle of Women in Games International said that 12 to 18 per cent of the industry is women and many game developers and publishers have problems finding and retaining female employees.

"My thesis is that it's a male-dominated business," said Patrick Soderlund, executive vice-president at EA Studios.

Quoted

Yves Guillemot, CEO of Ubisoft

"I'm not sure that flies, but I think it overall may have something to do with it — that boys tend to design for boys and women for women. I'm just happy that we have a game with a female heroine."

When female characters did appear in games promoted at this year's show, many were part of a team, such as knight Isabeau in The Order: 1886, a moody adventure game that finds the Knights of the Round Table battling supernatural forces.

"Developers have a tendency to paint female characters in very specific, stereotypical lights," said The Order creative director Ru Weerasuriya.

"We wanted someone who was grounded in reality, but in actuality is sometimes a better knight than the others. There's no reason why that shouldn't be the case in games. That's the case in the real world, right?"

Teacher of inmates raped at prison: Report

A teacher at an Arizona prison was alone in a room full of sex offenders before being stabbed and sexually assaulted by a convicted rapist, according to documents obtained by The Associated Press about an attack that highlighted major security lapses at the facility.

The attack occurred Jan. 30 at the Eyman prison's Meadows Unit, which houses about 1,300 sex offenders.

The teacher was administering a high school equivalency test to about a half-dozen inmates in a classroom with no guard nearby and only a radio to call for help.

The Department of Corrections issued only a barebones press release after the attack, but the AP pieced together what happened based on reports obtained under the Arizona Public Records Act.

After the last of the other inmates left, Jacob Harvey asked the teacher if she could open the bathroom and then attacked her, records show. Harvey is accused of stabbing her in the head with a pen and sexually assaulting her.

The teacher told investigators that she screamed for

Sacrifice. Before praising the marine, President Obama announces plans to send up to 300 U.S. military advisers into Iraq

A 24-year-old veteran who lost an eye after taking a grenade blast in Afghanistan to save a fellow marine received the highest U.S. military honour Thursday in a sombre White House ceremony.

President Barack Obama walked from the briefing room — where he had just announced plans to send up to 300 U.S. military advisers into Iraq — to the East Room, where he praised retired Cpl. William (Kyle) Carpenter's instinctive valour and called him a shining example for a post-9/11 generation.

"Carpenter should not be alive today, but the fact that he is gives us reason to trust that there is indeed a higher power," Obama said.

The dual events — Obama's Iraq announcement and the Medal of Honor ceremony — underscored just how much the U.S. is still realizing the human cost of the conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan, two wars the president pledged to end.

The physical toll exacted by his act of heroism offered a sobering reminder of what was taken from Carpenter in the small Afghan village where he was wounded in 2010. Carpenter required nearly 40 surgeries and multiple skin grafts.

Americans have come a long way from hunting and gathering food

Evolution or devolution?

People in the U.S. don't even have to wander the chilly grocery aisles to buy food anymore — there is a buffet of firms who will do it for them

If you dread making supermarket runs, you're in luck.

Same-day grocery delivery services from Google, Instacart and Postmates are expanding into more cities around America, delivering everything from cereal to bottled water to toilet paper from nearby stores.

The Associated Press tried out all three services. They're fast, easy to use and way more convenient than waiting in the checkout line. All three deliver from local stores in the U.S., as well as some big national chains, such as Whole Foods, Costco and Target.

Americans now have the option of letting the groceries come to them. Several companies are offering same-day delivery services. SPENCER PLATT/GETTY IMAGES FILE

The services across America are different from more established grocery delivery companies such as FreshDirect, Peapod and Amazon-

Fresh, because they don't actually sell groceries directly to you. Google Shopping Express, Instacart and Postmates merely send someone to stores in your neighbourhood. It works like this: You select what you want online or on an app, choose a delivery time and the service will deliver the items to your door.

But convenience comes at a price. The delivery charges can vary greatly. Google and Instacart offer flat rates, while Postmates' fees depend on the distance of the delivery. And you may want to tip the delivery people. All three companies say it's not necessary, but Instacart and Postmates allows you to add a tip while shopping on the app or website.

Besides delivery costs, Instacart charges a premium for items from some of the stores it delivers from. That means you will end up paying a lot more than if you walked over to the shop and bought it yourself.

Another downside: getting your groceries delivered means you may be missing out on using coupons or browsing for cheaper alternatives in the store. And the orders do not always go according to plan.

How the services measure up

Google Shopping Express

- Items listed on Google's service match those of the stores it works with.
- The company doesn't deliver meats, fish, fruits and other perishables.
- $4.99 US for each delivery.

Instacart

- Prices are higher on items from stores it doesn't have a relationship with.
- You can order from Costco even if you don't have a membership.
- Two-hour deliveries are $3.99, one-hour are $14.99.

Postmates

- Besides groceries, the company delivers from local restaurants, drugstores and fast food joints.
- Delivery fees start at $5 and are determined by distance. A nine per cent service fee is also charged.

The move means Charney was suspended as president and CEO of the Los Angeles-based chain pending a contractually required 30-day period before he can be terminated.

The board's statement said that the proposed firing is for cause, and cited an "ongoing investigation into alleged misconduct," without giving details.

1 Futbol anyone? You can always count on the World Cup to elicit some hardcore patriotism. After all, what could be more pride-inducing than watching professional soccer players from different countries play for other countries to millions of fans cheering vehemently for the nation they came from but no longer live in?

2 Scientific breakthrough. A University of Toronto research centre has developed a groundbreaking scheme that could cure major diseases plaguing humanity for ages. It's daring. It's radical. It's called ... sharing! How does it work? Imagine someone in Europe makes an experimental breakthrough, but is missing one crucial element. Enter U of T's recent genetic advancements, combine them, and it's the peanut-butter cup of life-saving science. Sounds gimmicky to me. It'll never catch on.

4 Runneth over. The L.A. Kings won the Stanley Cup and all I can think about is how greedy that city can be. They already have Hollywood, warm weather, hot celebrities, the Oscars, the Kar-

5 Pass it over. A 22-year-old threw a football over a Michigan prison wall. Unfortunately, it missed its unknown recipient and landed between two security fences. Officers recovered the ball, which was stuffed with weed, heroin, tobacco and three cellphones with chargers. He was charged with three counts of furnishing contraband to inmates, and shattered his dream of ever playing in the NFL. #dumbcriminals

6 Not-so-free agent. The San Antonio Spurs won their fifth NBA title in 15 years with a convin-

7 Mayoral theatrics. Actors from all over Canada flocked to Toronto's legendary sketch-comedy residence, The Second City, to audition for Rob Ford The Musical: The Birth of a Ford Nation. As a former Second Citizen myself, I assure you that the position won't be cast based on physical traits. The role will be assigned to the performer who best embodies the elements that bring truth to the character. Also, very few physical props are used, so any crack-smoking will be mimed. Can't promise the same for the "drunken stupors."

8 Eastbound for sound. Music lovers looking for a brief Canadian getaway are invited to join me next week for the Festival International de Jazz de Montréal. Montreal is beautiful in the summertime and even better with performances from Aretha Franklin, Elvis Costello, Michael Bublé, Nikki Yanofsky and I'm especially looking forward to hearing Snoop Dogg rap in French. #FIJM

9 Final broadcast. The world mourns the loss of entertainment icon Casey Kasem this week. I'd like to send out this long-distance dedication to the man whose voice taught us new words on Sesame Street, devoured Scooby snacks as Shaggy, and counted down the hits for us each week. Though his feet may no longer be on the ground, may he always be reaching for the stars. #RIP

The future will be hoverized

Mark De Roche says the company hopes their hovercrafts will have recreational applications. "Our goal is to set up air parks where people can be trained in a scenic environment as the hovercraft doesn't damage land in the same way that a car does," he says. COURTESY AEROFEX CORPORATION

Introducing Aero-X

Sci-fi hovers into reality

A sci-fi hover bike, akin to the flying forest speeders from Star Wars: Return of the Jedi, is set to take off by 2017. The Aero-X, designed by Californian-based Aerofex Corporation, uses ducted rotors in a similar fashion to a helicopter but with far greater control. The aircraft, which costs $85,000 US and can fly at 72 km/h, will only hover to heights of 4.5 metres, so that a pilot's licence isn't required. Chief technology officer Mark De Roche tells Metro why we'll all be riding into the future on a hovercraft.

Did you decide to design this after watching Star Wars Episode VI: Return of the Jedi? (Laughs) I hate to disappoint but I've only seen one of the Star Wars movies and it didn't influence the design.

In the James Bond movie Die Another Day hovercraft float over minefields. Are the military interested? It's not going to be used by the military at this stage. But the Aero-X can be used for ranching, crop dusting, and search and rescue.

Is it like riding a hovercraft or a motorcycle? It's probably closer to a motorcycle. You're in a dynamic air environment. At first your eyes are fixed on the ground but when you get used to focusing on the horizon and adapt to the winds, you're transported into a different element. You bank into a turn based on the wind like sailing — you get an intuitive sense about the wind.

Do you require a helmet? I didn't wear one for quite some time and the guys and I decided it was reckless. We were in the desert so I didn't feel much need but it's likely depending on the laws of a country whether a helmet will be required. METRO

Music saves the Jersey Boys

Reel Guys

RICHARD
CROUSE AND
MARK BRESLIN

Jersey Boys opens this weekend. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

Based on the Broadway hit of the same name, Jersey Boys begins in 1951 Belleville, N.J. and follows childhood friends Frankie Valli (John Lloyd Young who won a Tony for his performance of Valli on stage), Tommy DeVito (Vincent Piazza) and Nick Massi (Michael Lomenda) from the streets to the studio and with the addition of songwriter and keyboardist Bob Gaudio (Erich Bergen), from clubs to concert halls as the Four Seasons, one of the biggest-selling acts in rock history. Hits like Big Girls Don't Cry, Walk Like A Man and Can't Take My Eyes Off You kept them at the top of the charts — but ego, infighting, and money troubles blew them apart.

Go for the tunes, not the theatrics.

Clint Eastwood-helmed rags-to-riches music tale lacks realism, but is saved by a bunch of earworms that will have audiences tapping their toes

Richard: Mark, I thought director Clint Eastwood set up the story of the band well enough. From their hardscrabble beginnings to the height of their success, it's a rags-to-riches story and when it focuses on the four band members, it works.

Unfortunately it takes a cast of characters to tell the tale, and Eastwood seems content to allow his supporting actors to go off-the-charts theatrical. By the time the end credits roll, it's clear that the movie is a caricature of a real-life story.

Nothing feels completely genuine, as if the theatricality of the stage version bled into the film.

Mark: Richard, I think I know when the film goes off the rails.

When the band breaks up two-thirds of the way through, everything that follows feels forced, cheesy, and the emotions play a bit phoney.

But I still enjoyed the movie. I saw the theatrical version twice and I'm a big fan of the group.

The music makes a bigger impact in the stage version, but some of the characters play better in the film.

None of the acting is stellar, but it's always fun to watch Christopher Walken do his "good mobster" schtick, and Erich Bergen as Bob Gaudio, the brains of the group, really stood out for me.

RC: The songs are undeniably catchy and well performed by a cast, three-quarters of which come from the various incarnations of the stage show.

They are earworms that sound authentic, by and large thanks to Young who perfectly mimics Valli's soaring multi-octave falsetto voice. The bulk of the movie, unfortunately, doesn't soar as high as Young's voice. The Broadway show is basically a rock concert with a story. The big-screen treatment requires more.

MB: I thought it did — in places. The feuding between the members of the group worked better in the movie, but the opening scenes of Italian boys in da hood has been done many times before, and went on way too long. Note that it takes one full hour before they sing their first hit, Sherry.

The movie filled in a lot of texture about the Jersey mob and life on the road that wasn't in the play, but you know, Richard, it's about a rock group in the 1960s, so I don't even have to like it to like it.

RC: I liked the style, the songs, but I wanted more from the characters. The songs will stay in your head; the characters won't.

MB: And after Valli got his name upfront of the group, shouldn't it technically have been Frankie Valli and the Three Seasons?

When a Guy becomes an animal

The Rover. Actor Guy Pearce talks about surviving in a post apocalyptic world — aided by a special kind of water bottle

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Guy Pearce is a little preoccupied with water bottles at the moment. The Australian actor was apparently so taken with the particular metal bottle — made by S'well — that he carried around on the set of the dystopian film The Rover that he contacted the company himself about them.

Which is why I find myself carrying an identical bottle into my interview with him. "Ah, you got one! Excellent! What colour is it?" he asks straight off, comparing it to the one he's sipping from.

The package says it's blue.

That's good because this is the colour of the one I carried around on the movie. The whole time, the art department woman told me, "When we get to that scene that we're going to do in the café, I'm going to use that bottle." I said, "Oh great, fantastic." But she said, "I need to get it more battered up and beaten up." Of course we used it, because there's something sort of blue in every scene, there's a small blue thing in every scene. So she used the bottle, and it's there like an internal promotion. And then I ended up buying all the crew one of these each and had them print The Rover on them, which I think is what you've got in there. Can I have a quick look? (He takes my bottle and unwraps it.)

So that bar in the movie just serves water?

Pretty much, yeah. We don't even know if it's a bar or what it is, it's just some sort of place. It probably serves food if you were to ask, but I don't know what you'd get.

This film doesn't waste a lot of time explaining why or what everything is, it just presents this world as it is.

And that's what's great about (writer-director) David (Michod). As an audience member, there's so much of you wanting to work out what's going on that it's nice to not be told everything all the time. I think it can be really evocative if you feel like a fly on the wall or you're just brought into a world and it's happening in front of you without following the usual formula. And I get why formulas work and why they're utilized, but I do think it's really interesting sometimes to just come in crossways instead of just being introduced in the front door and explained everything.

Your character basically has nothing left at the beginning of this film.

That's right. It's interesting, because everything you don't know about my character at the beginning of the film I also didn't know about that character when I read it. So I really had to sit down with David and make sure I understood who this guy was prior to the film.

Lindsay Lohan ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

It's London calling for LiLo! Starlet embraces new city (and a new beau?)

Lindsay Lohan apparently has been wasting no time getting her new London life up and running — including her love life. The starlet has been linked to British actor Tom Bilkey, with the pair spotted out and about. But Bilkey insists they're just friends. "I met Lindsay four years ago through mutual friends when I was working in L.A.," he tells the Daily Mirror. "She's actually really down-to-earth and cool. I think she likes the scene over here." Whether or not Lohan is getting romantic with Bilkey, she's definitely falling for London. "Lindsay's convinced everyone in America is out to get her, but she's had the opposite experience in London," a source previously told Radar Online. "She loves British culture and says people have treated her with respect for the first time in years. Now she's looking into the immigration process and planning a full-time relocation."

Maybe Kanye's not such a groomzilla after all?

Kanye West and Annie Leibovitz have issued a joint statement clarifying comments the rapper made recently about the photographer.

The Thursday statement says West's comments Tuesday at the Cannes Lions international advertising festival regarding Leibovitz's availability to shoot his wedding "have been taken out of context and sensationalized."

West was frustrated that he couldn't secure Leibovitz's services for his marriage to Kim Kardashian last month, the statement says, but he was not assigning blame.

The new King of Spain begins his royal reign

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News

Spain has a new king! Also a new queen, two new princesses (well, they were princesses already), and a retired ex-king. All hail King Felipe VI, Queen Letizia, and Princesses Leonor and Sofia.

"But wait," I'm sure you're saying. "A European royal family did something? Where are the commemorative plates? Why aren't I watching an E! special about it?" That's because the Spanish royal family rolls a little differently than our pals the Windsors — especially now, when Spain's economy is so bad. Felipe has promised to focus on austerity, and he set a good example with his coronation, which may have been the least fancy coronation since the Middle Ages — instead of a big, splashy ceremony with an international guest list and lots of parties, Felipe opted for a slimmed down event with relatively few guests and little in the way of pomp.

That's not the only unusual thing about this coronation: The reason Felipe has ascended to the throne in the first place is because his father, 76-year-old King Juan Carlos, decided to abdicate. Juan Carlos, who helped moved the country from fascism to democracy, has always been extremely popular with his subjects, but of late the Spanish royal family's reputation has taken some hits. Felipe's older sister Princess Cristina is embroiled in a tax scandal, and many are questioning why a cash-strapped nation needs to foot the bill for a royal family at all, even a relatively cheap one.

Fair point! Here is my counterpoint: Look at those adorable little princesses. You don't want them to have to grow up and get jobs, do you?

Why you gotta be so mean? Yahoos throw bottles at Taylor's house

Taylor Swift has some rather angry detractors out there, and apparently they like to take their anger out on her Watch Hill, Rhode Island vacation home. Three Connecticut residents were arrested last weekend on misdemeanour charges for throwing beer bottles at the home and shouting "F— you!" and making rude hand gestures at security guards, according to the Westerly Sun. The trio "extended their middle fingers" at the guards, though one suspect insisted to authorities that they were making a hand gesture Swift uses in one of her music videos as a way to pay tribute to her. All three were charged with misdemeanour disorderly conduct and released. Swift was not at the property at the time of the incident.

Harrison Ford is recuperating after surgery to heal a broken leg suffered during production on Star Wars: Episode VII.

The actor's publicist said Thursday that Ford is doing well after surgery and will soon begin rehab. Ford was injured a week ago during filming of the much-anticipated sequel at Pinewood Studios outside of London.

The accident involved a spacecraft door falling on the 71-year-old actor's leg. Ford's Han Solo pilots the Millennium Falcon, which is returning in Episode VII.

ABORIGINAL DAY

WEEKEND, June 20-22, 2014

Time to celebrate

Did you know? NAD spreads awareness about the cultures and traditions of First Nations, Inuit and Métis people of Canada

For Metro

From its origin in 1996, National Aboriginal Day (NAD)—joining First Nations, Inuit and Métis in honouring their diverse cultures, unique heritage and long traditions — has grown to bring Canadians together in celebration of the contributions Aboriginal People make to the country.

According to the declaration made by former governor general Romeo A. LeBlanc, it was appropriate to give a yearly day to mark and celebrate the Aboriginal People to Canada, and to recognize their different cultures.

For Nelson Mayer, executive director with the Alberta Native Friendship Centres Association, NAD is all about cultural pride and identity. “This day is especially important for our young people, who gain pride and confidence when we highlight the significant contributions Aboriginal People have made in Canada,” he said.

There are three groups of Aboriginal People: First Nations, Inuit and Métis, along with several language families. For example, the Beaver and Tahltan languages are part of the Athabaskan language family. Many Metis speak Michif, while Inuit often speak Inuktitut. And, if you want to refer to all the First Nations in Algonquin (another of the many aboriginal language families), you would use the word anicinabec.

Recognized every June 21 from coast to coast, NAD kick starts Celebrate Canada!, an 11-day celebration that includes Saint Jean Baptiste Day (June 24), Canadian Multiculturalism Day (June 27) and ends with Canada Day (July 1). June 21, the summer solstice—the day of longest light, and a day of spiritual significance to many—was chosen as the date for NAD because of its symbolism to the culture.

Did Aboriginal People inspire our two national sports, lacrosse and hockey? You bet. Do you know who does throat singing? The Inuit. Many of the events around the country serve to educate and involve fellow Canadians about aboriginal culture, whether through traditional games, dances and concerts, or workshops on food-making and medicinal plants.

Join your fellow Canadians to celebrate NAD this weekend.

Aboriginal Day Live about to make its mark

Party in Winnipeg. Billy Ray Cyrus, Lightning Cloud, and Yvonne St. Germain headlining this year

For Metro

In 2007, Aboriginal Day Live & Celebration began as an hour-long live broadcast of four aboriginal musicians on the Aboriginal Peoples Television Network (APTN), hosted out of a small park in Winnipeg, but its creator, Sky Bridges, always had bigger plans.

The event has evolved into a cross-country festival of musical performances and cultural activities.

Now it involves more than 14 musicians and many more arts and cultural activities, broadcasting live performances from two locations: Winnipeg and Halifax.

"We get artists to add other elements [to their performances] they might not have done before," Bridges explains.

Highlights this year include international country music star Billy Ray Cyrus, Canadian gospel singer Yvonne St. Germain, accompanied by a full choir, and rap/hip-hop group Lightning Cloud, who will perform a special set just for the show.

"Every single act is bringing something very special to the stage," said Bridges.

Bridges, now the COO of APTN, thought of the idea for Aboriginal Day Live & Celebration after noticing that National Aboriginal Day on June 21 wasn't celebrated on a national level.

- Web: aboriginaldaylive.ca
- Winnipeg: At the Forks, 11:00 a.m. to 11:30 p.m.
- Halifax: At the Halifax waterfront, noon-11:30 p.m.

"We wanted to create a celebration of National Aboriginal Day that could create a new dialogue with Canada around aboriginal cultures, as well as create a space for Aboriginal People to celebrate who they are and express themselves in music and culture," explained Bridges.

Participants take part in activities such as soap carving. COURTESY APTN

Aboriginal Day Live & Celebration is helping aboriginal artists change how they celebrate their identities, traditions, histories and art across Canada, he says, particularly since the event incorporated social media over the past three years.

To say Natalie MacLean loves Canadian wine would be an understatement. The award-winning blogger has been an ardent supporter of our home-pressed juice since starting her popular wine review site nataliemaclean.com.

For the last few weeks, MacLean has been hosting The Great Canadian Wine Match: an online contest to find Canada's ultimate barbecue wine. Wine lovers across the country have nominated their favourites and have been encouraging others to vote for their picks. Voting ends today, so if you want to have your say, head to her site.

I always struggle when it comes to mentioning Canadian wines in this column. Popular in their own provinces, most don't have national distribution. That is starting to change.

Larger markets have recently received an allotment of Benjamin Bridge's 2013 Nova 7 ($24.99 - $25.95). Nova Scotia's aromatic, signature wine tastes like summer in a glass, with a light fizz lifting its zesty, citrus flavours.

Strawberry-Balsamic Glazed Pork Tenderloin.

Summer starts tomorrow and this little red berry is the star of the season

When you discover foods that have a natural affinity for one another, it's easy to find numerous excuses to enjoy them together.

One such combo is strawberries and balsamic vinegar. Both sport assertively sweet, nicely acidic flavours that not only work well together, but also pair up wonderfully with so many other foods.

For grilling season, pork tenderloin that is slathered with a strawberry-balsamic glaze just makes sense. For optimal flavour, the pork gets hit with the strawberry-balsamic blend three times.

1. In blender, combine strawberries, oil, vinegar, honey, garlic, salt and pepper. Puree until smooth. Pour about a third of mix into saucepan and set aside. Pour another third of mix into large non-reactive bowl. Pour the remaining sauce into a small bowl.

2. Slice pork tenderloins into 1/2-inch rounds. A few at a time, place rounds between sheets of plastic wrap, then use the meat mallet or rolling pin to carefully pound the rounds to an even thickness of about 1/4 inch. Place the pounded rounds in the non-reactive bowl with the sauce, turning to coat evenly. Refrigerate for 30 minutes.

3. After the pork has marinated for 20 minutes, heat a grill to medium-high.

4. Place saucepan of strawberry-balsamic sauce over medium-low heat on the stovetop. Bring to a simmer and cook, stirring frequently, for 8 to 10 minutes, or until thickened. Cover the pan and remove from the heat.

5. When the pork has finished marinating, use an oil-soaked paper towel held with tongs to oil the grill grates. Place the pork rounds on the grill. Baste the pork with the sauce set aside in the small bowl. Grill for 3 to 4 minutes, then flip the rounds, baste again and cook for another 3 to 4 minutes.

6. Divide pork among 6 serving plates; spoon simmered sauce overtop. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

87 detained after stadium break-in

FIFA has acknowledged being embarrassed by a security lapse that let ticketless Chile fans rampage into Maracana Stadium.

Fences have been breached by fans at both World Cup matches staged at the country's most prestigious stadium, which hosts the final on July 13.

"It is embarrassing," FIFA director of security Ralf Mutschke said Thursday, one day after dozens of ticketless Chile fans broke into the stadium ahead of their team's 2-0 win against Spain.

Brazilian authorities said 87 people were detained after smashing their way through a perimeter wire fence into the stadium media centre.

FIFA has hands full with slurs, banners

FIFA said Thursday it was investigating claims that Mexico fans chanted anti-gay slurs during their opening match against Cameroon.

FIFA said "disciplinary proceedings were opened against Mexico for improper conduct of spectators" last Friday in Natal.

The same chants were heard during Mexico's second match against Brazil in Fortaleza on Tuesday.

"FIFA takes a firm, zero-tolerance stand against any form of discrimination or racism," FIFA said in a statement.

Fare, the European fan-monitoring group, has also alerted FIFA to far-right banners displayed by Croatia and Russia fans inside stadiums. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Twice bitten by Suarez

Big-time brace. Upon return from injury, controversial Uruguayan striker preys on shaky back line of England

Luis Suarez scored twice to give Uruguay a 2-1 victory over England at the World Cup on Thursday, making an instant impact in his return from injury to revive his team's Group D campaign.

The Liverpool striker, who hadn't played since undergoing surgery on his left knee last month, lashed in the winner in the 85th minute, after seeing his first-half opener cancelled out by Wayne Rooney.

After surprisingly losing its Group D opener to Costa Rica, Uruguay's qualifying chances have now been given a major lift, while England's hopes of advancing to the round of 16 are in real jeopardy after its worst World Cup start in more than half a century.

Suarez seemed to revel in inflicting England's second successive loss in Brazil, having been punished twice by the country's Football Association for misdemeanours, serving Goals cancelled. Greece stays afloat after losing captain to red card

Referee Joel Aguilar passes judgment on Greek captain Kostas Katsouranis on Thursday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Reduced to 10 men after captain Kostas Katsouranis was sent off in the 38th minute with his second booking, Greece held on for a 0-0 draw with Japan on Thursday that kept both alive in Group C and sent rival Colombia through to the knockout round of the World Cup.

Both teams inserted new strikers in search of goals and a first victory, but ultimately the main objective was survival and both achieved that with one match left in group play. Japan would have been eliminated with a loss in Natal.

After Katsouranis was sent off for his rough challenge on Makoto Hasebe, Greece withdrew into a defensive setup and held firm. Greece surrendered three goals in a loss to Colombia, but even short-handed was

"My players were brilliant," said Greece coach Fernando Santos. "They worked hard after the red card. Without the red card we probably would have won the game."

Katsouranis will be suspended for Greece's final group match against Ivory Coast.

Japan's best chance came in the 68th minute when Shinji Kagawa played a long pass over the top to Atsuto Uchida, who sent it back across the middle to Yoshito Okubo, who blasted the volley high.

Pirates scale wall for 12th-inning walk-off vs. Reds

MLB. Game ends on a bases-loaded walk drawn by Martin

Pirates catcher Russell Martin didn't start Thursday's game. Rather, he ended it.

Martin drew a bases-loaded walk off Tony Cingrani with two outs in the 12th inning and Pittsburgh beat the Cincinnati Reds 4-3 to avoid a three-game sweep.

Cingrani's first pitch buzzed in low around the ankles of Martin, who drew boos from those left in attendance for not letting the ball hit him to score the winning run.

"I did wonder maybe if I would've got hit the game would be over," Martin said.

The Pirates' Gregory Polanco couldn't squeeze a deep drive against the Reds on Thursday.

"But when it's at your feet you just react, and I just reacted."

Later, Cingrani's 3-1 pitch caught what Reds manager Bryan Price thought was a part of the strike zone established during the game's proceedings.

Instead, it was ball four.

"I'm not saying we would have won this game," Price said. "But it certainly didn't give us an opportunity to go out there and compete in the 13th."

Cingrani (2-8) took the loss after he gave up a single to Gaby Sanchez, balked him to second, intentionally walked Josh Harrison and hit Clint Barmes with a pitch to load the bases.

Martin entered the game in the 10th and wound up walking twice.

Justin Wilson (2-0) retired the Reds in order in the top of the 12th.

Lawsuit seeks to block Pats from paying bonus

An attorney in a wrongful-death lawsuit against former New England Patriots tight end Aaron Hernandez wants to keep the team from paying him a $3.25-million contract signing bonus if he wins a union appeal.

Attorney William Kennedy added the Patriots and the team owner's company Kraft Enterprises LLC as co-defendants in a $6-million lawsuit for the estates of Daniel de Abreu and Safiro Furtado, whom Hernandez is accused of killing, the Boston Herald reported Thursday.

Prosecutors say Hernandez ambushed and gunned down the men after an encounter inside a nightclub weeks before he signed a five-year, $40-million contract and went on to catch 51 passes and score five touchdowns in 2012. Hernandez has pleaded not guilty in the men's slayings.

The Colorado Avalanche could be wearing out the red carpet at the NHL awards show next week with all the talent they have up for honors.

Semyon Varlamov is in the running for top goalie, Nathan MacKinnon up for best rookie and Ryan O'Reilly a candidate for sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct. Coach Patrick Roy also could be recognized for his work behind the bench.

It was just that kind of season for the surprising Avalanche, who tied a franchise record with 52 wins as they returned to the post-season after a three-year absence.

The attention now — with the nominations and all — is "exciting," Roy said.

The attention they're sure to draw come next season?

Well, it's enough to inspire fear — or so Roy is hoping, because, "the day you're capable of dealing with the word fear, you're becoming a winner."

"There are going to be expectations," Roy said Thursday as he and front office executive Joe Sakic discussed everything from the upcoming draft to free agents to watching the Los Angeles Kings win the Stanley Cup title. "That's what we're going to have to go through."

Up for silverware

In addition to goalie Semyon Varlamov and coach Patrick Roy, the Avs' contenders at the NHL awards include:

- Ryan O'Reilly up for the Lady Byng Award for gentlemanly conduct. He committed just one minor penalty all season.
- Nathan MacKinnon, a favourite for the Calder Trophy, given to the top first-year player. MacKinnon led all rookies in points (63), assists (39) and shots (241), scoring two goals and dishing out 10 assists in the post-season.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

Money and possessions are important, but don't make too big an issue of them. Over the next few days you should concentrate more on relationships, especially family.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

You may be tempted to interfere in someone's personal situation but no good will come of it. You cannot do everything for everyone, so decide who is on your help list and let others learn from their own mistakes.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

The Sun is about to leave your birth sign and it won't be long before you notice a difference in the direction your life seems to be taking. The important thing is that you don't try to stop the inevitable.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

There is an energy and urgency about you now that has been lacking in recent weeks and it will grow many times stronger when the Sun moves into your sign tomorrow. Your life is about to take a huge turn for the better.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

If you play hard to get today you may send people the wrong sort of message. For one thing they may believe you no longer care, which isn't true. Make yourself available, tiring though it may seem.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

By all means plan something new but don't start on it yet. When the Sun changes signs tomorrow it's quite likely you will become aware of a better way to reach your aims and fulfill your desires. There's no rush, so take your time.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

It's good that you have the confidence to take risks but not so good if you take them wildly. As the Sun nears the career angle of your chart make sure you don't do anything silly on the work front. Important people are watching.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

You may be tempted to end a relationship that has been going through stormy seas of late but is that really a wise move? To be on the safe side wait until the Sun changes signs tomorrow. You may find that your attitude changes too.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

The most important thing now is that you do not allow vague fears to hold you back from what you are planning. A number of things can go wrong but even if they do the consequences won't be so bad.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You seem to have resigned yourself to the idea that you will have to take a loss on something that just hasn't been working out the way you planned. Don't be hasty. What happens over the weekend will cheer you up no end.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Can you trust what other people tell you? No you cannot. They may not be trying to trick you as such but there is reason to believe they themselves have been deceived, so err on the side of caution and trust your own instincts first and last.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Fate will take its chosen path no matter what you may think about it, so go with the flow and adapt to what happens rather than try to fight it. One of the best times of the year is about to begin, so you have nothing to fear. SALLY BROMPTON
